“Joanne became neighbors with my parents, Annette and Joseph Blais, in their later years. She was a great advisor, support and friend to them and especially my mother, after my father passed. My mother relied on her for advice and guidance. After both my parents had passed, I remember a call from Joanne to give me the name of someone who could cut the grass at their empty house because it had grown too tall. "We don't go for that in Lemington" was her closing line on the message. That still makes me laugh. We are grateful for her strength, wisdom, tenacity and friendship. Condolences to her family.

“My sympathies to Joanne's family. When I first became acquainted with Joanne we immediately hit it off. We would chat about most anything and then we were always able to share a laugh or joke about something. I started calling her JoJo. Definitely one of a kind and will never be forgotten. A true friend until the end. I love you JoJo and RIP.
